

Keeping Pace with an Integrally Connected World

With technology moving at an exponential rate, audiovisual design is no longer a segregated discipline. An enhanced user experience integrating the physical and digital worlds is not only expected but essential, whether in an office building, hospital, public plaza, residential or art space.

GROWING YOUR VISION AND OURS

2016 was a banner year for the audiovisual division of Jaros, Baum & Bolles (JB&B). Under the leadership of Bruce Manning, some of the team’s new commissions—from distributed network-based digital audio systems to video walls to state-of-the-art classic design—include:

- Jacob K. Javits Convention Center Expansion
- New York Stem Cell Foundation
- Pace Gallery
- 35 Hudson Yards, Public Square and Gardens
- Equinox Hotel
- 55 Water Street Lobby Renovation

INCREASING OUR DESIGN TEAM

To keep pace with our growth, we have added two new talented designers to our AV team:

Richard M. Coley
Senior AV Designer

Kelsey N. Mayhew
AV Designer

Reach out to JB&B AV to schedule a presentation to experience the next generation of audiovisual that will enhance your and your users’ technological advantage.
